

UPDATE and PROTECT your Home with Iron

Just in time for spring consider giving your home an update with iron.

Wrought iron has been an essential design element in European homes for centuries, but its popularity in the United States has soared in recent years as Americans have fallen in love with the flavor of French country. Even if you can't start from scratch, there are a million things you can do with iron pots, wall mounted grill work, an iron console, a bench or a pair of sconces. We visited Mississippi Ironworks and discovered a showroom filled with inspiration for transformation! We also discovered they do custom design work. If you can imagine it, they can probably make it for you.

Security is another feature that has affected the growing requests for iron. From gates and fences to front doors, families, as well as individuals living alone, can make their homes safer without sacrificing the desire for style. Over the last twelve months, more law enforcement personnel have invested in these products than in the previous twenty-five years of Mississippi Ironworks businesses. Whether you are the individual or the law enforcement official hand-crafted, all steel products not only add the final touch to your home, but more importantly, secure your home when you are away, preventing home invasions.

With high energy costs being a major concern for all families, energy-efficient steel security doors function as a strong storm door, providing dead air space between existing doors. For those who remember the "good ole days" when one could get fresh air through screen doors and open windows, Mississippi Ironworks has an optional, vented top, as well as a new, hinged glass on our "Verona" series. Subsequently, allowing you to receive fresh air while maintaining your safety.

An original concern for families was having insulation and security without obstructing the view of the outside. "Secu safe" glass offers a full-view while maintaining safety. From wood-grain finishes to custom faux finishes, there is something for everyone's taste.

With an uncertain economy, including rising fuel costs many individuals see the necessity of having these products, Mississippi Ironworks product is steel and their strength is security. Welcome yourself home with peace of mind by protecting your home. ∞
